

Connect the Dots

Check off the rules that you have in your house for practicing good online privacy

- We will work with an adult we trust to learn how to share things online.
- We will think before we click. Photos, videos and comments can sometimes be tough to take down.
- We won't tell people where we are when we're online.
- We will ask for help from a grown up if we put something online we didn't mean to.
- We will not buy a game without asking our parent or guardian first.
- We will not download an app (even if it's free) without asking a parent or guardian.

If you're worried about something you see online, or have questions about how to protect your privacy, talk with an adult you trust.

Kids go online earlier in life than ever before – which means that parents and guardians should start talking about the digital world and online privacy much sooner than they used to. We created this activity sheet as a fun way to get the conversation started.

For more activities and information, visit youthprivacy.ca

This activity sheet is available free of charge; we encourage you to copy and share it. We've developed this activity sheet and other materials to help to raise awareness of privacy issues among young Canadians and provide information to help them reduce privacy risks.
