Steps taken to notify individuals of the incident	Affected individuals were notified in writing on July 9, 2020.
REAL RISK OF SIGNIFICANT HARM ANALYSIS
Harm Some damage or detriment or injury that could be caused to affected individuals as a result of the incident. The harm must also be “significant.” It must be important, meaningful, and with non-trivial consequences or effects.	The Organization reported “If the threat actor did indeed access this information, there is a risk that this information could be used to commit fraud, such as identity theft, against the affected individuals”. In my view, a reasonable person would consider the contact, identity, employment and financial information at issue could be used to cause the significant harms of identity theft and fraud. Email addresses could be used for the purposes of phishing, increasing the affected individuals’ vulnerability to identity theft and fraud. These are all significant harms.

Real Risk The likelihood that the significant harm will result must be more than mere speculation or conjecture. There must be a cause and effect relationship between the incident and the possible harm.	The Organization did not specifically identify any harm that might result from this incident, but its notification to affected individuals stated, Although Ceridian (the service provider) has no direct evidence that this file left the Ceridian network, we are notifying you because we cannot rule out that possibility. In my view, a reasonable person would consider that the likelihood of harm resulting from this incident is increased because the personal information was compromised due to the malicious actions of an unknown third party. Although the Organization said there is “no direct evidence that the file left the Ceridian network”, it was unable to determine if the unauthorized third part viewed or exfiltrated the personal information at issue.

DECISION UNDER SECTION 37.1(1) OF PIPA

Based on the information provided by the Organization and given the circumstances of the incident, I have decided that there is a real risk of significant harm to the affected individuals.

A reasonable person would consider the contact, identity, employment and financial information at issue could be used to cause the significant harms of identity theft and fraud. Email addresses could be used for the purposes of phishing, increasing the affected individuals’ vulnerability to identity theft and fraud. These are all significant harms. The likelihood of harm resulting from this incident is increased because the personal information was compromised due to the malicious actions of an unknown third party. Although the Organization said there is “no direct evidence that the file left the Ceridian network”, it was unable to determine if the unauthorized third part viewed or exfiltrated the personal information at issue.

I require the Organization to notify the affected individuals whose personal information was collected in Alberta, in accordance with section 19.1 of the Personal Information Protection Act Regulation (Regulation).

I understand the Organization notified the affected individuals in writing on July 9, 2020 in accordance with the Regulation. The Organization is not required to notify the affected individuals again.
